Resistance from Food, The Elves of the Shallow Sea, and Consequence

Resistance from Food

Resistance from Food was inspired by an article Oliver once read about over-caught lobsters that caused this species to become endangered, thereby destroying the marine ecological

The Elves of the Shallow Sea

"Turtles have always been Oliver's favourite animal. After learning that the shallow seas have caused the environment to be destroyed due to excessive garbage dumping, and many organisms have developed deformities due to the clamping of plastics, Oliver wanted to record their beautiful appearance.

Consequence

Consequence was inspired by Japan's plan to throw nuclear sewage into the sea. Oliver was shocked by this irresponsible behavior. For this piece, Oliver imagined that after many years, the squid, which has undergone nuclear wastewater changes, becomes a danger. The piece is titled "Consequence" as a reminder of human impact on the environment.

Oliver (He/Him) is a third year student from China studying visual art at the University of Ottawa. He has studied art for many years and has a very recognizable style. Oliver is focused on drawing with pencil and acrylic and he can also work with Procreate. His inspiration and style comes more from his imagination. Oliver usually uses intense colors and bold composition to complete his works.
